Private Islands In Fiji Open To Private Jet VIPs

Six ultra-luxury Fijian resort buy-out options for the ultimate island escape

Last updated Feb 12, 2021

While Fiji remains predominantly closed to the outside world amidst the COVID-19 crisis, there is a way foreigners can still experience the tropical island nation... And it comes with a lofty price tag. Enter: the private island buyout.

The island nation has permitted high net worth individuals (HNW) to visit Fiji so long as they arrive by private charter aircraft and buyout a resort or charter a private yacht, both for a minimum of 14 days.

Fiji's private island resorts range from intimate islands with just a handful of 'bures', to larger resorts accommodating 100 or more guests. Those HNW individuals seeking an ultra-luxury escape are presented with a unique opportunity to have a Fiji island completely to themselves.

Through the country's "VIP Lanes" for air travel and "Blue Lanes" for sea travel, Fiji is encouraging discerning travellers to escape to the island nation via private transportation.

The country's quick and effective response to COVID-19 has allowed Fiji to avoid any outbreak of the virus, recording just 56 cases total. With enhanced safety measures and guidelines in place, visitors can truly have peace of mind as they get off the grid with a two-week escape to paradise and enjoy their own private island in utter isolation.

Whether it be a reunion with friends and family after months of separation or a long-needed romantic escape to reconnect with a significant other, here are Fiji's best-in-class luxury, private island resorts available for buyouts:
